

Property Owners Have No Objections to Ball Grounds

Just before press time, The Eagle telephoned a number of persons who own property in the vicinity of the Coon Baker lot, where it is purposed to have a baseball diamond, and none of these property owners objected.

Hunter Ennis said he had no objections to the diamond being located on the Baker lot; J. H. Ennis said he had none, provided the grand stand was not built too close to his house. R. L. Gaines, who also owns property in the community, said that he did not think that he would have any objections, that he had not thought much about it. R. W. Lisenby, speaking for his mother, said there would be no objections from that source. Mrs. G. R. Thompson, another property owner, could not be located over the telephone, but it is not believed she will have any objection.

If the people who own property in the vicinity of the proposed baseball diamond have no objection, this would eliminate the probability of any proceeding being instituted on the grounds that it would be a nuisance.

OPPOSED TO LEGAL MURDER

Albany, N. Y., March 3.—Letters said to have been written by condemned murderers were read before legislative committees today at a hearing on bills intended to abolish the death penalty.

Thomas Mott Osborne, warden of Sing Sing prison, read a composite letter which he said had been written by Robert Kane, Vincenzo Camparelli and Oscar Vogt, executed February 26. It was styled "an appeal for the brink of the grave," and said in part:

"Only a few months ago our president appealed to the people to pray that in the legal murder, carnage and slaughter in Europe might cease. Is the cause for our destruction any greater than that between nation and nation now engaged in bloody warfare? Therefore, we appeal to you, not only to pray for us, but also to demand the abolition of legal murder."

FANS FAVOR BAKER LOT

TO CONTINUE TAKING RISKS

Opinions Expressed that Mayor Joe Baker Will Hold Firm in His Promises, Regardless of Opposition.

The movement inaugurated among some of the members of the board of education to oppose locating the baseball diamond near the Grammar School building, was discussed by local fans who met this afternoon in a downtown office.

C. J. Faulk was elected temporary president and C. O. Golson temporary secretary-treasurer, and these officers, with a committee composed of T. A. Ward, J. W. Grant and A. D. Usery will confer with President Dick Jemison to close the deal for the franchise tomorrow.

Several fans expressed the belief that Mayor Joe Baker will stand firm in his offer of the Coon Baker lot, near the Grammar School building, for a baseball diamond. Knowing the Mayor well, they believe he will stick to his offer, regardless of the pressure brought to bear.

The Board of Education solidly does not oppose locating the diamond near the ice factory; just a few of the Board of Education have taken this position in opposition to the plan of the fans.

Will Make Fight.

If necessary the baseball fans will make a strong plea for the lot as promised, and will engage the services of a competent speaker to explain fully the unfairness of the opposition. They are confident Mayor Baker will listen to their side of the argument, and give them a fair hearing.

As pointed out by one of Dothan's leading men in education, if the location of the diamond near the school building would be a great favor to the schools for they could have their athletic meets on this diamond.

Jemison's Telegram.

T. A. Ward received the following telegram today from President Jemison: "Will leave here midnight for Dothan. Arrive there 11:05 Friday morning. Have everything ready at your end. Must leave on return journey by 4:30 Friday afternoon. Will bring Cordele franchise papers with me. Dick Jemison."

MAN ON TRIAL; KILLED WIFE

Sandersville, Ga., March 3.—The trial of Lee Kennedy, charged with the murder of his wife in Emanuel county in November, 1911, was begun here at 2 o'clock this afternoon, a change of venue having been granted him on account of high feeling in his home county. Judge R. N. Hardeman, newly elected judge of the middle circuit, is presiding.

Four panels of jurors were called and after an hour's examination twelve men were chosen and at 2:15 o'clock the state began its examination. The first witness was Dr. George Smith, who attended Mrs. Kennedy after she was shot and beaten. He was followed by three other witnesses and court adjourned until

Situation in Europe, However, Gives War Risk Bureau Much Concern.

Washington, March 3.—Although the government war risk insurance is expected to continue for the present the writing of insurance on American ships and cargoes destined for belligerent nations toward neutral commerce is giving much concern.

The war risk bureau already has felt compelled to raise its rates on insurance to German ports before the sinking of the American ships Carib and Evelyn and it is now confronted with the problem of how to meet the situation resulting from the declaration of the allies that commercial intercourse by sea between Germany and the outside world will be stopped.

Blockade Would Bring Relief.

Experts in international law pointed out tonight that if a blockade actually had been declared the bureau would not be in an embarrassing position, as its policies contain clauses designed to relieve the government of risk where an insured vessel or cargo is seized in attempting to run a blockade.

Under the announced plan of the allies, however, it was said that if an American non-contingent cargo should be seized and detained for months the government might be held liable for the insurance.

The action of private insurance underwriters in New York in specifying that they should be exempt from liability on account of seizure by the allies can hardly be adopted by the government bureau. It was argued that a step of this sort would practically mean that the government was not anxious to take any risks of the kind which shippers are most desirous of having covered.

Cotton Among First Problems.

One of the first problems that has arisen here in connection with a declaration of an embargo on commerce with Germany involves cotton contracted for before the announcement of the prohibition was made by England. Several million dollars' worth of cotton was on the docks ready for shipment in various southern ports, and two such consignments were brought to the attention of the British ambassador today by foreign trade advisers of the state department. The ambassador sent a long statement of the case to his government. It is not known yet whether the British government will pay for such shipments or permit them to reach Germany along with those which leave the United States after the declaration of an embargo was made.

REORGANIZATION URGED FOR ALABAMA MILITIA

Montgomery, Ala., March 3.—A complete reorganization of the state militia is recommended in a report by the state military board made public for the first time by the legislative reorganization committee. The report was issued in 1913 but until the legislative committee dug out the document and read it at an open meeting there was no publicity given it.

Four panels of jurors were called and after an hour's examination twelve men were chosen and at 2:15 o'clock the state began its examination. The first witness was Dr. George Smith, who attended Mrs. Kennedy after she was shot and beaten. He was followed by three other witnesses and court adjourned until

HOW TO KEEP SWEET POTATOES

By J. W. BEECH, A. M. LL. D. Pres.

Meridian College, Meridian, Miss.

One of the best crops for the Southern States to raise is that of sweet potatoes. It can be planted after a crop of oats or early corn and Irish potatoes or any early crop and will make before frost. It can be made with less labor than most crops, and will produce a large yield per acre. Land that will yield thirty bushels of corn or a half bale of cotton per acre will produce from 100 to 250 bushels of sweet potatoes to the acre. They stand a drought well and can stand a rainy season with good result. If the land is broken deep and smoothed off can be set out without grading the land and cultivated level will make more than six on beds.

The greatest problem has always been to keep sweet potatoes through the winter. This is why they are not more largely raised for market. Meridian College of Meridian, Mississippi, has been making experiments for many years in order to discover a plan by which sweet potatoes can be kept with reasonable certainty to be marketed when prices are higher. We believe we have solved this problem. After several years testing the plant we have been able to keep about 90 to 100 per cent of our sweet potatoes, including cut and bruised ones, till used up or until our new ones come in the next year. Our plan, briefly stated, is this: Build a tight house, storm sheet it, cover with builder paper and weather board it, eel walls and overhead, leave door in south end, window in north end. We use two door shutters and double windows in some opening, one opening outside and one on the inside. This leaves a dead air space to keep air warm. Make air shaft through the ceiling and center of roof, extend it above roof and open it south with transom above the roof. Make slatted shelving on each side of room. Beginning about twelve inches from floor, shelves two feet apart made of one by four lumber placed one inch apart so the air can circulate freely through the shelves. We have an aisle in the center three feet wide, shelving extending to the aisle have stalls back of shelves so an air space will be between potatoes and wall. Build sixteen or twenty feet wide and as long as wanted. It takes one ten feet high and thirty feet long to hold 2,000 bushels. Dig potatoes in as dry a time as possible. Handle them carefully so as not to bruise them. Put out ones to themselves and small potatoes on bottom shelves, as it takes them longer to dry on bottom. Place a large stove in the center of the room. If the building is long put in two stoves or as many as needed to heat well. Coal stoves keep heat longer. Heat up the room to a 100 degree temperature by shutting lours and windows. Open transom in ventilating shaft. A small vent hole 4 inches by 9 or 12 inches under the door for intake air is necessary while drying if the building is tight. The stoves should be heated as soon as the first potatoes are put in so as to begin drying at once before they rot. The idea is to kill dry the potatoes. The moisture cultivates the rot germ. It can't live in dry potatoes. Get excess of moisture out of potatoes as quickly as possible. It takes about ten days of heat with the thermometer registering about 100 degrees to dry the potatoes without freezing. Then open the doors and windows and keep potatoes as cool as possible. Forty degrees will be right or as nearly as possible. No more heat will be needed all winter in South climate. In freezing weather shut all doors and windows to keep potatoes from freezing, but don't fail to ventilate it again when the weather moderates. We have never failed to keep potatoes in a house like this dried in this way, and kept dry and cool without freezing. Before we learned better we thought that we would wait until all the potatoes were in before we began drying but we found that we had waited too long, as about 100 bushels were rotted before we knew it. We bought potatoes that were rotting and dried them out and they stopped rotting, although we do not advise this to take that risk. A few will be lost of dry rot, but very few, it stops the wet mushy rot that usually destroys the whole crop when it starts. This house can be made cheaply of lumber. No floor is needed but select a high dry, well drained place. A dry house it what is wanted. It can be made of brick or stone. Meridian Male College has one of cement blocks. They were made and laid by the students. The Woman's College has one of wood, which is quite inexpensive but it serves the purpose. Each college makes and keeps from 1500 to 2000 bushels each year. They raise them at little cost. We give two and sometimes three plowings and no hoing unless it be to chop down some scattering weeds or bunches of grass. We never make hills or beds or ridges upon which to set the potatoes. Distribute your manure broad cast, plow it under deep. The deeper the better. Make them flat by pushing in ground with a stick when ground is moist.

Cultivate flat. If commercial fertilizer is needed put it by the side of the plants after they have been set out two or three weeks and plow it in. Remember, that if the potatoes are very large it takes longer to dry. The trade generally want smaller potatoes. These can be made by setting slips 12 inches apart or even closer. This will regulate the size of growth. Set out slips early to get a good yield as early as possible after frost is over they can be set out in April, but May is the best month to get the best yield. They can be set as late as July, but the yield is much smaller. The potatoes are not full grown. It is an easy crop to make and easy for us to keep in these "dry houses or kilns." If any further instructions or suggestions are wanted write either College sending stamp for reply. The U. S. Department of Agriculture at Washington, D. C., sent a man to study our plan for the A. & M. College of Mississippi. Many people have come to see the potato house to learn how to build one and others have written for it. Quite a number are being built. We take this method of passing it on to others and shall be glad to send further instructions to any interested.

Marketing.

If we wish to catch market and best prices we must cultivate the northern market where they cannot raise sweet potatoes. They sell best in the north put up in crates. We must get in touch with purchasing agents from the north and put up packages for shipment as they desire.

Varieties.

We find the early Triumphs the earliest, most prolific and best keeper. The sweetest and the best all round sweet potato. It is a cream colored or not deep yellow potato. The college has

CY BROWN DIDN'T SAY HE MADE CONFSSION ABOUT BURNING PARSONAGE IN DUFF

A REMARKABLE ARGUMENT

Statement in Advertising About Dothan Parsonage Burned is Error.—No Confession in Hands Business Does

Following the statement published in the Advertiser a day or two ago to the effect that Cy Brown has made a statement before the Legislative Committee to the effect that the department had a written confession of the burning of the parsonage at Dothan last year, the citizens of Dothan knew that no such confession existed, or, if it did, nothing had ever been said about it.

Following letter from Dr. Brown to Dr. McNeill, is explanatory:

"Montgomery, March 3, 1913.
Rev. H. H. McNeill,
Dothan, Ala.

My Dear Sir:
I have just read in this morning's Montgomery Advertiser, on account of certain testimony given on by me on yesterday before the investigating committee of the legislature in reference to expenditures made by the Insurance Department when under my supervision in investigating fires of supposed incendiary origin. That part of the article which quoted me as saying a confession was secured from anyone as to the burning of your house is error. No such statement was made by me in reference to the burning of your residence. This statement dealt with an entirely different investigation. I write you in order that you may know that the reporter writing the article is in error.

"Yours truly,
CYRUS B. BROWN."

However, there is a strong resemblance to the burning of the parsonage, and it is very probable that the incendiary will be brought to face his crime. The indignation of the people against this horrible outrage has by no means subsided. There can be no explanation for such a dastardly crime and when the perpetrator is brought before the courts there will be no plea for mercy.

But what made this dastardly crime indifference to crime, and a sleepy public sentiment? Did the lawless feel that they had a sympathetic friend in the state's chief executive? Must not the notorious court hear Mr. Baldo?

Emilio Pollicani, the young detective, who, under the name of Frank Baldo, was taken into the streets that "law or no law" he would not convict a certain class of law breakers, is not nearly so clear largely responsible for the crime? Is a community, in its security—security of life, property—wherever it operates, to be regarded as something to be despised? It is令人惊异的 that there is no sense of things.

Brewing Cold in

Her Love.

We don't know whether we are a close reader or not, but it has occurred to us on several occasions during the past few weeks that The Advertiser displays just the slightest bit of dissatisfaction over Senator John A. Link. If we have read something into the column that that great purveyor of public opinion did not intend, then we apologize to both. But if, as we have some cause to suspect, The Advertiser is growing cold toward the "Warhorse from Marshall," we wish to repeat what the late Dr. Ayer said when he met a which hated rival on a public corner in Dothan, and they whilst with other over the heads. He said: "When Greek met Greek, — who to pay."

The Advertiser has done figured it out that Senator Link and State Graves would oppose Sam Kennedy in his race for railroad senator next year, and the former being rotten state-wide would have no show whatever against the latter.

About this we cannot say; but we are constrained to mention here in passing, that no big political star of future see will come within the reach of any except he can show fairly straight record as a prohibitionist, if the tendency of the times are clearly read.

It has been within the memory of Alabamians that if a candidate hoped to get a respectable vote, he had to fight shy of the prohibition invocations. He couldn't tell it to generally known he was a prohibitionist, except purely theoretically. But the people of Alabama, although the state, educationally, are rapidly becoming educated, and education puts new political ideas into the heads of the people. We are producing a generation of new drinkers, and the common school boys are being given training along this line that the common school boys of the past never were taught. They'll be voters after while.

It is very likely that the last hard-fought whiskey election is over in Alabama. No man will care to bore his bosom to the official lists of the prohibition vote, by announcing his candidacy for office on a local option platform, where it is so clearly shown that local option in Alabama mostly means whiskey.

It looks like law-enforcement all over Alabama. If so, four years of prohibition will cook the people. And then, who will have the nerve to offer to turn things back?

Senator Link and Collier, two prohibitionists in a race against a local option ticket.

You don't care when you buy cheap or big-name baking powder. Don't be misled. Buy Calumet. It's more economical—more delicious—plus best results. Calumet is far superior to ever-made baking powder.

The Wrong Way Out.

Commercial Appeal.

"I have tried and have failed. This is the best way out," declared a Cleveland business man the other day as he prepared to take his life. Business and domestic troubles, the old story of weakness and a lack of character made death inviting. The man was glad to leave his troubles behind him and depart voluntarily for the unknown.

The story of suicide is usually the same. When all of the blandishments of life are gone the coward sneaks to death. The brave man lives on.

More than one mental and moral coward, face to face with financial ruin has shown the white feather. He has slipped away from it all leaving wife, mother, family to grieve over his cowardice and lack of confidence and to face the world dependent upon the same world's generosity.

The man who is too cowardly to face trouble and permit his wife and children to share it with him, and who prefers the easiest way and will leave his loved ones dependent without recourse and without the means of living, is about the meanest man who can be found.

The great Napoleon had a fine contempt for a moral coward. He had a greater contempt for suicide. "Suicide is a crime," he declared, "and the most revolting to the feelings; nor does any reason suggest itself to our understanding by which it can be justified. It certainly originates in that species of fear which we denominate poltroonery. For what claim can that man have to courage who trembles at the frowns of fortune. True heroism consists in being superior to the ills of life, whatever shape they may challenge him to combat."

Here are words of wisdom. Every man who is a man has a great contempt for a quitter. To die in order to avoid any thing that is evil or disagreeable is not in keeping with what should be the actions of a brave man. It bears all of the well-known earmarks of the coward. It is only the coward who shuns the trials and crosses of life. The business man of Cleveland who was too cowardly to face his financial reverses and who thought that suicide was the best way out of it, it was wrong. He selected the worse way out.

Suicide may be a confession of guilt unless committed by one mentally irresponsible. Suicide is always a confession of failure. The person in trouble, whether brought on by his own folly or through the fault of others should be honorable enough and brave enough to face the consequences like a man at least.

East Indian Village Deities.

There is a cruel custom prevailing in many parts of the Telugu country, in India, in connection with the worship of the village deities. At the end of a sacrifice a small cart with four, five or nine pointed stakes standing upright at the corners and sides is brought to the image. Pigs, lambs and fowl are then impaled alive upon these stakes. The cart is dragged in a procession to the boundary of the village. The animals die in agony on the way and are taken off the stakes when the cart reaches its destination.

Double Service
AUTOMOBILE TIRES
Guaranteed 7000 Mile Service
Absolutely Punctureproof.

Double Service Tires are double the thickness of the best standard make tires.

This 100% greater wearing surface naturally gives that much more mileage and service. The average of 12 plies of tough fabric and one inch surface tread rubber makes those tires absolutely punctureproof.

These tires exceed all others for use in the country over rough and rugged roads as well as on hard pavements. They are as easy riding and resilient as any other pneumatic tire—the air space and pressure being the same.

They are the most economical and "care free" tires made and are used where tires must be depended on and tire troubles cannot be tolerated. Many Double Service style tires are in use in the United States government and European war service.

Our output is limited, a certain amount, but for a short time we offer the following reduced special prices as an Introductory offer:

The above is a cut of the Genuine James Oliver A. C. 2 Steel Beam Plow,—this is the heavy one-horse, and will be found to be one of the best breaking plows on the market, chilled wing landslide and point, light running and easily handled. We recommend this plow where a large mule or horse is worked or can be used with two small mules.

Then we have the Goober in medium size and the Goober No. 6, in small steel beam. The No. 6 is a new plow and this is the first year it has been on the market. It is a dandy where a light steel beam is wanted and has them all beat,—both made same as the A. C. 2.

We have the full line of Genuine Oliver Plows including all sizes in the two horse, one and two horse Middlebusters, prices ranging from

The Well or the Steeple?

The chap who hollers down a well
About the goods he has to sell,
Will not reach near so many people
As he who hollers from the steeple.

What's the use of making a good article or running a good store if people don't know it?

Proof of success lies in public appreciation.
The public is hungry for good things and good service—eager to read about such things.

That is one reason why the great majority of people are newspaper readers.

And it is the reason why newspaper advertising is such an effective business-builder.
